

Four Billions Spent for Arms in Four Nations

By ARTHUR F. DEGREVE
United Press Staff Correspondent
London, July 22. (UP)—The ragged pockets of the four leading countries of Europe disclosed more than a billion dollars each year for armaments, despite their poverty pangs.

This situation confronted Secretary of State Stimson, America's "disarmament salesman" upon his arrival in Europe recently. Stimson before President Hoover's proposal for a one-year debt moratorium had finally been accepted in principle by France.

His visit is looked upon here as the natural "follow-up" of the conversations directed in London and Paris by his cabinet colleague, Secretary of Treasury Mellon.

A survey by the United Press revealed the following table of figures indicating the trend of armaments in the last three years:

Country	1927	1928	1929
England	$2,000,000,000	$2,000,000,000	$2,000,000,000
France	$2,000,000,000	$2,000,000,000	$2,000,000,000
Germany	$2,000,000,000	$2,000,000,000	$2,000,000,000
Italy	$2,000,000,000	$2,000,000,000	$2,000,000,000

The total cost of national armaments in the four countries during 1929 was $7,700,000,000 or $1,925,000,000. Great Britain, under the leadership of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, is the only European power that has translated into action her oft-repeated desire for disarmament.

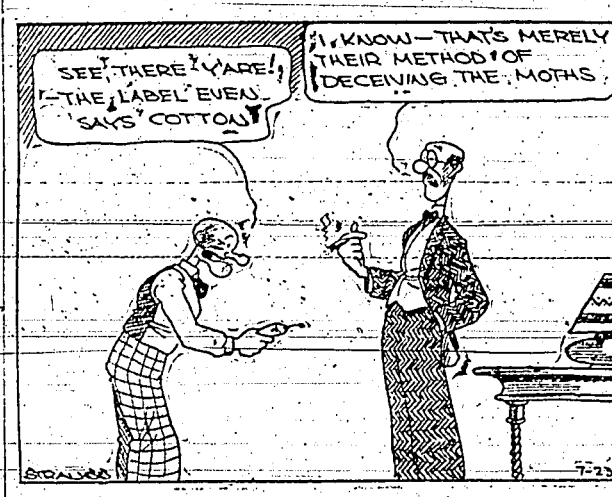

Sizable reductions have been made in appropriations for the British navy in the last decade—in 1921 the budget authorized the expenditure of $441,861,500 on comparison with approximately $288,700,000 this year.

Although Stimson is assured of a valuable and energetic ally in MacDonald in the cause of disarmament, British officials have announced no further reductions would be made by England until other nations had followed her earlier lead and likewise scaled their fighting forces downward.

French naval appropriations for 1931 totalled $477,000,000. French francs as compared with 797,804,000 francs in 1922. Italian naval expenditures showed $81,048,748 appropriated in 1921 and $80,795,701 in 1931.

Failure of the two powers to agree at the London naval conference and at subsequent meetings is held responsible for these high appropriations by Italy and France 12 years after the World War. The differences between the two Mediterranean powers, which have thwarted the efforts of some of Europe's best diplomats, accentuate the difficulties confronting the general disarmament conference in Geneva in February, 1932.

JUST AMONG FRIENDS

Bankers Plan Keeping Credit Of Germans Up

Washington, July 22. (UP)—The United Press was informed today on the latest authority that leading American bankers have agreed to continue on a similar action by bankers of other important financial powers—not to withdraw advances, deposits or credits from Germany for the present.

By so agreeing, these bankers have accepted tentatively President Hoover's latest proposal to consider the issue of international banking. Their action is considered highly important. Officials estimate that of the $1,000,000,000 (billion) of short term credits now extended Germany, fully half—$500,000,000—is held in the United States. A very large proportion of this amount, it is said, is controlled by large international banks.

At the seven-power conference of government heads at London yesterday, Secretary of State Stimson and Secretary of Treasury Mellon submitted the latest Hoover proposal to Great Britain, Germany, Italy, Belgium and Japan.

His high point was the proposal that international bankers should agree to maintain existing credits while Germany took strict measures to prevent a "flight from the money."

Before the proposal was launched, it is understood, the administration was assured by large New York banks that they would cooperate.

About a dozen of the strongest New York financial institutions agreed to maintain existing German credits.

Their action, it is understood, was contingent on similar steps by other leading financial centers.

Willingness of the large American bankers to accept the plan, combined with the favorable British attitude toward it, would seem virtually to assure its success—unless political barriers are raised at London. Between them, the United States and Britain control a large majority of short-term credits to Germany.

The Hoover plan, as advanced at London yesterday, contained four main points:

1. International cooperation by bankers to maintain short-term credits to Germany.
2. Firm action by German officials to prevent the flight.
3. A study of an international committee to Germany's needs for immediate further credit.
4. Development during the next six or eight months of plans to convert a proportion of short-term credits into long-term credits.

Labor Leader Sees Dangers In Discontent

Washington, July 22. (UP)—Striker and discontent evident in many quarters today as an outgrowth of unemployment holds a threat of greater dangers unless a program of wage restoration is adopted, President William Green of the American Federation of Labor declared today.

In an interview with the United Press, Green repeated his demand that President Hoover call a conference to formulate a national economic program. Only by such means, he said, suffering and probable disorders be prevented next winter, he believed.

He outlined a program of declaration of principles for this conference, the gist of which is guaranteeing security for those now employed, absorption of the unemployed by shortening hours, and no reduction of wages. Restoration of a feeling of security among workers, he said, would lead to a return of normalcy.

"At the present time working people are scared to death," Green said. "They get a dollar and hold on to it."

This psychological situation will continue, he said, until security is assured for the workers.

Green sat cross-legged in his office and appeared a little worn from the heat. His voice rose frequently in passionate remonstrance.

The head of American organized labor drew a dark picture of present economic conditions and spoke out strongly as to the obligations in this crisis of President Hoover and leaders of industry.

"I've repeatedly recommended that President Hoover call a conference of labor, industry and economists to give consideration to measures to relieve the present situation, particularly to release the buying power of those at work in order to relieve unemployment," Green said.

"Nobody else but the President could call such a conference. Nobody else could assemble the big men of industry."

"I have maintained that it is the obligation of the management of industry to assure those who are not employed of work security and to spread out work and absorb those now unemployed."

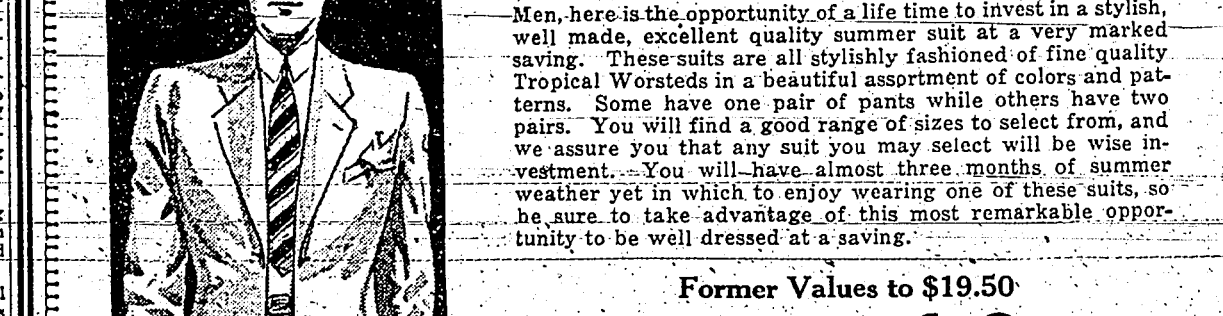

"It's a matter of work," he said emphatically.

"It is the obligation of the management of industry—they must face it. They must face it even if they have to divide work."

FROM THE BOOK The wicked flee when no man purseth; but the righteous are bold as a lion.—Proverbs 28:1.

SALOME She stamped her foot, "I want his head!" And her head was black as she looked at John: "I want his head in my hair!"

John would not "kiss" to her to die, "I want his head in my hair!"

John would not "kiss" to her to die, "I want his head in my hair!"

STATE PRESS SAYS

Marshall News: The last Legislature passed a new law about the regulation of the sale of pistols. Under its provisions a person wishing to purchase such firearms must present a statement to the seller that the party is of good moral character and a peace-loving citizen. This must be signed by the Sheriff or the County Judge. It becomes operative Aug. 1.

There must have been a good deal of pistol bootlegging while the anti-pistol law was in bloom. Now that we understand the law has been sharply amended, it will be interesting to watch whether a considerable increase of six-gun consumption ensues. Apparently, every thug who shouldn't have had a pistol under the law had one anyhow. In fact, it can not be asserted that those who thought they needed pistols for perfectly lawful purposes were put to excessive trouble in procuring them. As is the American custom, easy ways were found for circumventing a restrictive statute. Some towns, determinedly rigid in a transitionary period, permitted a "dry" ordinance, have forbidden bootlegging to ply their trade on Sunday. Yet citizens calmly and serenely appeared on Sunday mornings with adequately polished them with their own hands or procured lawless hands to polish them. In either case they circumvented the law and they walked around town they circumvented it, so to speak. After Aug. 1, when State Press is ready to buy himself a pistol, he will have to get a permit from Sheriff Hood or Judge Alexander. Being a proud individual, S. P. will resent the requirement to have his character certified by any public official. In this frame of mind, can he not justify himself for getting his pistol by a roundabout process? And shooting whomsoever he may deem deserving to be shot?

PEONS AND DEAD BEATS

Another case of alleged peonage comes to the fore! A Colorado sheepherder comes into town to tell a story of serious misadventures, approaching bondage, extending over a period of sixteen years. He tells the authorities that his property has been confiscated; his pay has not been forthcoming in accordance with a verbal contract; he has been denied clothing when he was ill; and when he requested medical attention when he was ill, and when he requested, he has been beaten.

That is his side of the story. Those who have observed the unfolding of the details of other cases will be slow to reach conclusions in this case, from the preliminary accounts. Only a knowledge of all angles of the incident will enable an observer to determine whether or not personal liberty has been violated. This principle of emancipation for all humanity, regardless of "race, creed, color or previous condition of servitude," is a dearly-bought heritage; and the zealous perpetration of that principle is to be praised.

However, the ranchers of the West and the farmers of the South are confronted with an unusual situation. Sometimes, in their methods to procure help to harvest the products of their labor, it is difficult to determine the line of demarcation between servitude and the right of contract.

It might be well for cotton growers to bear that point in mind this summer, in handling labor with the distressful circumstances under which many of them will seek employment in the cotton fields. Under our system of farming and ranching there have grown up practices known as "furnishing" and "advancing." The cotton grower "furnishes" his help through the winter with the necessities of life, to be paid back during the cotton picking; and the rancher makes "advances" regarding the Mexican ranch hands that are to be paid back during the shearing and shipping season.

Cyphers Lauds Old Basis for School Funds

Retention of the scholastic basis for school funds is a question under the consideration of the Board of Education at Austin this week. The school superintendent of Austin, J. W. Cyphers, superintendent of schools, told the News-Messenger Wednesday that he is highly desirous that the appropriation remain unchanged.

Superintendent Cyphers said, "for many years we have been in the habit of making appropriations during the approaching school year. A reduction would mean fever or no building improvements during the approaching school year."

Word from Austin Wednesday was to the effect that the state board anticipates maintenance of the scale, due to decreased scholastic population of the state and added income expected as a result of the four-cent package cigarette tax.

A board survey has shown that the scholastic population of 1,550,000 last year will be increased to 1,550,000 in 1931-32. During the ensuing year the available school fund will be increased to $1,550,000.

County students between the ages of 18 and 21 years also may be benefited by a pending legislative bill which would permit them to attend school without tuition costs.

Cyphers said the board of education sanctioned the bill Tuesday if approved by the legislature. It is applicable only in counties where a local maintenance tax is levied; it was said.

Men of genius often do big things. But the little things that are at present for most of us so much a part and parcel of everyday life find themselves unable to do.

The reason is that they have fostered and cultivated disorderly mental attitudes. Out of the very disorder, like a phoenix from the ashes, or a good spring full panopied from the waves, their great ideas flash. But generally only once in a life time.

And before they make this brilliant discovery they are generally sorry folk, depending on others for the material comforts and necessities of life while the great thought is a-borning.

Laugh a little, and get busy at the task of sweeping the cobwebs out of your brain. Get your mental house in order, and then when an idea does come to dwell it will find the place neat and homelike so that it may linger with the feeling that it is not in strange environs.

Albert Higgins Is Winner in Slogan Contest

Albert Higgins, employee of the Hub Shoe Store, Wednesday was declared the daily winner of a national advertising slogan contest conducted by the American Tobacco Company, manufacturers of Cream Cigars, and will be awarded a new automobile immediately.

Announcement of his victory in the contest was made in a message to the News-Messenger from Lord Thomas and Logan, New York, advertising representatives of the tobacco company. Radio listeners throughout the continent also were told of the outcome on the Cremona program broadcast daily over the Columbia network.

Higgins took honors with the slogan, "Join the Central for Clean Cigars. Smoke Cremos and Enjoy a Good, Clean, Mild, Superior Cigar at Moderate Cost." He completed the contest with a daily slogan contest which will run in definitely. In announcing their decision, Cremona manufacturers declared Higgins "the best of the best from the standpoint of truthfulness and advertising value."

The Marshall man will be privileged to select an automobile from three lines of popular make. His selection has been made Wednesday morning.

Occasionally, the Abilene salesman appeared to be "almost rational" Tuesday only to lapse back into semi-obscurantism without recognizing his relative at the bedside, nurses reported.

Mental Houses in Order

Men of genius often do big things. But the little things that are at present for most of us so much a part and parcel of everyday life find themselves unable to do.

The reason is that they have fostered and cultivated disorderly mental attitudes. Out of the very disorder, like a phoenix from the ashes, or a good spring full panopied from the waves, their great ideas flash. But generally only once in a life time.

And before they make this brilliant discovery they are generally sorry folk, depending on others for the material comforts and necessities of life while the great thought is a-borning.

Laugh a little, and get busy at the task of sweeping the cobwebs out of your brain. Get your mental house in order, and then when an idea does come to dwell it will find the place neat and homelike so that it may linger with the feeling that it is not in strange environs.

Albert Higgins Is Winner in Slogan Contest

Albert Higgins, employee of the Hub Shoe Store, Wednesday was declared the daily winner of a national advertising slogan contest conducted by the American Tobacco Company, manufacturers of Cream Cigars, and will be awarded a new automobile immediately.

Announcement of his victory in the contest was made in a message to the News-Messenger from Lord Thomas and Logan, New York, advertising representatives of the tobacco company. Radio listeners throughout the continent also were told of the outcome on the Cremona program broadcast daily over the Columbia network.

Higgins took honors with the slogan, "Join the Central for Clean Cigars. Smoke Cremos and Enjoy a Good, Clean, Mild, Superior Cigar at Moderate Cost." He completed the contest with a daily slogan contest which will run in definitely. In announcing their decision, Cremona manufacturers declared Higgins "the best of the best from the standpoint of truthfulness and advertising value."

The Marshall man will be privileged to select an automobile from three lines of popular make. His selection has been made Wednesday morning.
